Think of something in your co-operative that is not accessible: a policy, a practice, an organizational culture, a space. Often we respond to issues in ways that are grounded in the values and logics of ableism, which are on the left. However, there are other values on the right, Collective Access/Liberation that are grounded in the world we want to live in. When thinking of your response think about how they match the values, and how those values can guide the response.
